

Resume & Cover Letter Guide

Tusculum University
Office of Career Services

Revised File Date 8/22/2018

Resumes & Cover Letters - are marketing tools used to tell your professional story. They communicate how an applicant's skills, abilities and interests match a specific employer's job requirements for a specific position. Employers are not seeking "the perfect candidate", but rather a candidate who is a good "fit" for a specific job. Resumes are very individualized to person and type of job. Resume writing is a formal unique style of writing not used elsewhere. There are many different opinions about how to write a resume. Listed below are some general resume guidelines.

Research and extensive editing are necessary to write an effective resume and cover letter. It can easily take four hours to write an effective resume and cover letter.

Research the job and company.

Review:

- Job description for specific position
- Job description for same position at other companies
- Company culture, mission, and press releases found on company website
- Informational interviews with an acquaintance, who is working in the same position at another company, if possible

Edit resume repeatedly for typos, spelling, grammar, brevity, and consistency in format. When you think the resume is ready to send, ask three more persons to proof your resume. Fresh eyes will often catch a mistake.

Be concise, you have approximately 6 to 15 seconds to gain the attention of the employer. Focus on strengths. Use bullets on resumes (dashes, if an e-resume), to highlight achievements in quantifiable terms.

Be honest and genuine. Never lie or misrepresent abilities on a resume or cover letter.

Tell one story about your work. Include only relevant work experiences that highlight how your abilities/interests match the employer's needs outlined in the job description.

Critically important information should be listed in the top one third of resume page. Usually this is the contact information, objective or professional summary, education, and some of the relevant work experience. If the reader is not interested in the top third of the first page of a resume, it is usually discarded.

Resume length should be appropriate for work experience. One page resumes are usually appropriate for traditional college students, who may not have much work experience. Non-traditional students, who have accrued many years of work experience, require a longer resume. Limit work experience to the last 10 to 15 years, in most cases.

Resume paper should be used to apply for jobs by USPS mail. Offer paper copies of resume to each interviewer, when interviewing. Take paper copies of resumes to interviews, even if you initially applied online. Resume paper should display a watermark when held up to a light. Only use conservative colors, white, ivory, or very pale gray, with no flecks or design. Use the same resume paper for references.

Chronological or functional resumes may be used. Most employers prefer chronological resumes, especially for the traditional college graduate. Functional resumes may be used to highlight key functions used in multiple jobs over many years.

Font and style of resume should be formal, consistent and easy to read. Ink color should be only black for the formal resume style. Recommended fonts are (Times New Roman, Arial, or Georgia) in a 10pt. to 12pt. size. Avoid casual fonts like Comic Sans. Headings in ALL CAPS look larger without using more space. Consistently using different styles (*bullets, italics, bolding, ALL CAPS) with similar items guides the reader to skim the resume more efficiently. Use only one font, but vary style of key matching items in resume.

Bullets allow the reader skim duties, skills and achievements completed in each position. Be very concise. Be consistent in formatting, using periods at the end of each statement or omitting periods from the end of each statement. Start each statement with an action verb in the appropriate verb tense.

Action verbs are used to initiate statements; omit personal pronouns. Eliminate any words that are not absolutely needed.

Include relevant keywords from job description to meet online resume screening software requirements in resumes and cover letters. Spell out acronyms, degrees, and titles to increase keyword hits and ranking for interview selection. Be relevant; only applicable keywords improve your odds. (Headers and resume templates sometimes hide keywords from a software screening.)

Contact information should be listed in an efficient format at the top of each page of resume. Contact information should include full name, address (city and state), phone number, professional email, and LinkedIn URL if appropriate. (Email should be yourfullname@something.com. Email should not be work or school email. Email should be professional, not cute like sexysuzy@something.com or profisher@something.com) Contact information format should be used at the top of the reference page to match resume.

References should be listed on a separate sheet from resume. Only submit references when requested. List three to five references on one sheet. For each reference include name, job title, name of employer, phone number, and email (physical address optional). Ask references for permission to list them as a reference. Email each reference a copy of your resume and cover letter, when you schedule an interview. Keep references posted on your job search. Professional references should be familiar with your work habits and performance, such as, former employers, faculty, co-workers, or supervisors for community service projects, not family members.

Avoid visual clutter and photos. (Some employers like photos; others discard resumes, which have photos.) Employers typically view applicant's social media postings online. Posting a professional photo on LinkedIn is recommended. Applicants should list personal LinkedIn URL in the contact information of resume, if profile is complete.

Avoid passive or negative statements or tone. Avoid obscure terminology and slang. Avoid using abbreviations, unless obvious (Two letter state abbreviation, such as, TN; and GPA 3.5/4.0 are acceptable abbreviations.) Spell out numbers under 10, per APA writing style (other than GPA).

Avoid listing unnecessary personal information. For example, do not include health status, marital status, number and ages of children, age, weight, height, and military status, unless required for the specific job.

Resume templates may be used to organize information. However, when applying online, resumes should be typed into a blank Word document, unless the application instructions direct otherwise. College Central Network (CCN) provides a resume builder with a free template, action word lists, and sample resumes at www.collegecentral.com/tusculum.

Read and follow directions exactly as listed in the job description.

Resume Construction should follow a traditional format and order. Only the most relevant information should be included. Sometimes good information is omitted to include information that is more important.

CONTACT INFORMATION – List name in 18 pt. font size at top of page. Then, list phone number, email, city, and state. (List LinkedIn URL, if appropriate.)

OBJECTIVE – An objective statement clearly states which job the applicant desires in one short sentence. Most employers want to see an objective statement for a specific job.

EDUCATION – List all schools in reverse chronological order, listing most recent school experience first. List the name of school, location (city and state), degree, major(s) area(s) of study, expected date of completion, GPA (if 3.0/4.0 or higher), and possibly relevant coursework, if space allows.

SKILLS & CERTIFICATIONS – List knowledge of foreign languages, computer operating systems and languages, other special certifications related to the position.

EXPERIENCE - List all work experience in reverse chronological order with most recent work first. List all full-time, part-time, and internship positions (paid and unpaid).

- For each position, include name of company, city, state, dates of employment, and job title.
- Start each bullet with an action verb. Do not use “responsible for” or “duties include”
- List key skills and highlight accomplishments in measurable, quantifiable terms. Do not simply list all regular work duties.
- Use keywords to improve software screenings

COMMUNITY SERVICE – List relevant volunteer work, highlighting transferable skills in the same format as other work experience, if space permits.

HONORS & ACTIVITIES – This section may be used to highlight awards, collegiate athletics, and professional association involvement. Include officer positions to demonstrate leadership skills.

OTHER POSSIBLE CATEGORIES: Professional Summary, Professional Affiliations, Research, Publications, Conference Presentations, Leadership Experience, Class Projects, and Relevant Coursework

WRITING COVER LETTERS

Cover letters explain how an applicant’s skills and interests match the needs of the employer, as outlined in the job description. Explain gaps in employment or a change of career, as needed. Cover letters should be three or four paragraphs of complete sentences, unlike the resume. Check cover letter carefully for typos and misspelled words. Be concise. Do not to address the cover letter “To Whom It May Concern.” Research to find the name of the hiring manager.

The introductory paragraph should clearly state which position you seek. Explain how you learned about the position, through a job advertisement or referral. If referred, list the name of the person who referred you.

The middle paragraph should state why your skills and interests are a good “fit” for the employer’s needs, based on the advertised job description. Explain why you are interested in the company and the position.

The closing paragraph should be short. Ask for an interview and include your contact information (professional email and phone number). Close the letter with “Sincerely”, “Best Regards”, or another formal business style. Do not forget to sign your cover letter!
